Mining bill hearing in Madison receives input from Ho-Chunk

Ken Luchterhand Staff Writer

Citizens of Wisconsin from all backgrounds and philosophies gathered in Madison on Thursday, Jan. 24, to express their views concerning a proposed state mining bill. Several Ho-Chunk representatives attended the hearing and at least one testified before the panel of state legislators.

A mining company,
Gogebic Taconite of Hurley, would like to remove ore from northern Wisconsin, but wants changes to state law before it applies for a mining permit.
For residents of Wisconsin, it's either seen as a boon to the economy, or creating a situation that will destroy the environment.

Republicans have introduced a bill, for the second time in two years, which lessens environmental protections and sets timelines for the Department of Natural Resources to make decisions for an applicant for a mining project. A bill by Democrats offers more modest changes.

Robert Mann, director of the Ho-Chunk Heritage Preservation Department, spoke before the panel. "My friends, I come here

"My friends, I come here today to speak a little bit about our culture. I hear a lot about this – two sides to the story," Mann said. "What I want to talk to you about is I speak from the heart and I want to tell you a little about our belief.

"What this is about is kind of saddened to hear all these things. My main concern is the land is very important, not just to my people, but to all of us. And we really need to take care of her. In our culture, we call her a grandmother and this is how we look at her. So whatever we do to the Earth is hurting our grandmother," Mann said. "With progress, the way it is today, there are things we do to abuse her. What I'm trying to say is that I ask all of you is: What is our destiny? Not just with the Ho-Chunk people, but all the people of Wisconsin. This I know, that Earth doesn't belong just to man – man belongs to the Earth. These are things that were taught to me by my grandfather, my father, and all my elder relatives. I just wanted to convey this message to you to really think about these things."

"You and Bad River tribe are sovereign nations, correct?" asked Rep. Brett Hulsey (D), Madison

"Yes," Mann said.

"As a sovereign nation, you have the right to set your own air quality and water quality standards, which can be strong enough to protect your health, your rice beds, your heritage, in a way, and because this mine is right beside the Bad River Tribe, those rules might apply to that, right?" Hulsey asked.

Robert Mann testifies before a public hearing concerning the proposed mining bill. Mann said that people should consider offering respect for the Earth.

"To some degree, yes it does. We have our own have our own tribal laws and things we do to protect the resources that we possess. But it does coincide with the other things we affect, too," Mann said.
"So, we can debate whether

"So, we can debate whether this changes Wisconsin's standards, or laws, and I believe it does," Hulsey said.

The hearing was held to receive input from the public about the subject. So far, no mining project has been formally proposed, however, Gogebic is suggesting is wants to create a $1.5 billion open pit mine. The first phase would operate for 35 years, creating a 1,000-foot-deep pit, which would cover four miles in Ashland and Iron counties.

The ore contains 20- to 30-percent magnetite. Gogebic would construct a facility that would break down the rock and concentrate the ore into pellets that could be used to make steel.

Gogebic would employ about 700 workers, with an average pay and benefits of $82,984 each, according to the company. In a ripple effect, total jobs gained would be 2,834, according to Goebic's consulting firm, Northstar Economics Inc.

The Republican bill would give 420 days for the DNR to review the proposals while the Democratic version would give at least two years. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers would also review the proposals. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has the responsibility to enforce water quality standards set by the Bad River band of Lake Superior Chippewa, which is opposed to the mine. The tribe is downstream in the Bad River watershed.

Some of the environmental concerns include the fact that sulfide deposits are situated in the rock where mining is proposed, which could harm the waters.

Also, the Republican bill would allow certain lake beds to be filled and wetlands to be destroyed, while the Democratic bill maintains existing environmental regulations.

Sulfide deposits can react with air and water to cause acid mine drainage, damaging surface and groundwater if the water is not contained or neutralized.

The last iron ore mine in Wisconsin was in Jackson County, which operated from 1968 to 1982, and is now Lake Wazee, the deepest inland lake at 355 feet. There are no other iron ore mines in the state.

Virtually all of the nation's iron ore is mined in northeastern Minnesota and Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

The proposed area in Wisconsin is estimated to contain 2.2 billion metric tons of iron ore reserves.

Over the life of the mine, Gogebic officials believe the steel industry will need a new supply of iron. Also, with new technology, the new mine will have a competitive edge over older mines.

THE HO-CHUNK NATION

In 1963, the Winnebago
Tribe of Wisconsin was recognized as a federal tribe pursuant to the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934. In November 1994, the Tribe approved a new Constitution which was formally recognized by the Bureau of Indian Affairs; the Nation's name legally changed to the Ho-Chunk Nation which the people have always called themselves.

As of January 2013, the Nation has 7,317 enrolled members. Of these, 5,139 (71%) reside within Wisconsin. Unlike many other native nations, the Ho-Chunk Nation does not have a single land base; and the Ho-Chunk Nation's trust land is primarily scattered throughout fourteen counties in Wisconsin which constitute our primary service area: Adams, Clark, Columbia, Crawford, Eau Claire, Jackson, Juneau, La Crosse, Marathon, Monroe, Sauk, Shawano, Vernon, and Wood. The largest concentrations of Ho-Chunk members reside within these 14 counties and the urban areas of Madison and Milwaukee and at large.

The Ho-Chunk Nation is composed of four branches of government: the General Council, Legislature, Executive Branch, and Judiciary. The General Council retains the power to set policy for the Nation. The General Council retains the power to review and reverse actions of the Legislature except those enumerated in Section 4 of the Ho- Chunk Nation Constitution. The General Council shall return such reversals to the Legislature for reconsideration consistent with the action of the General Council. The General Council retains the power to review and reverse decisions of the Judiciary which interpret actions of the Legislature. The General Council does not retain the power to review and reverse decisions of the Judiciary which interpret the Ho-Chunk Nation Constitution. The General Council retains the power to propose amendments in accordance with Article XIII of the Ho-Chunk Nation Constitution, including those which reverse decisions of the Judiciary interpreting the Constitution. The General Council retains the power to establish its own procedures in accordance with the Ho-Chunk Nation Constitution. The General Council retains the power to call a Special Election. Actions by the General Council shall be binding. The Ho-Chunk Nation's Legislature is the governing body and is composed of thirteen (13) elected members representing five (5) Districts. Districts 1 through 4 are located within Wisconsin; District 5 is outside the State. The Nation's Executive Branch is administered by an elected President, and includes eleven (11) executive departments charged with enforcing the Nation's laws and policies to provide essential services to members. The Constitution of the Ho-Chunk Nation charges the Judiciary Branch with the application and interpretation of the laws of the Ho-Chunk Nation.

As a sovereign government, we are dedicated to improving the lives of our members, socially and economically. Currently, gaming is the core business of the Nation. In addition to casinos and bingo halls, we operate convenience stores/gas stations, hotels, and other hospitality-based enterprises. We provide employment for almost 3,400 persons in our government and enterprises. For additional information about the Ho-Chunk Nation, please visit: www. ho-chunknation.com.

In 2003 at the General Council held in La Crosse, Wisconsin, resolution # 10-11-03 L, was presented and passed establishing the GCA. Boardman says farewell to staff and patients at the Ho-Chunk Clinic

Ken Luchterhand Staff Writer

It's always difficult to say good-bye, especially when someone who has been an integral part of everyone's life.

A farewell celebration was held Friday, Jan. 18, to Dr. Ben Boardman, who has served the Ho-Chunk Nation as a physician for 12 years.

Dr. Boardman worked for a year and a half, 1998-1999, with the Ho-Chunk Nation as a physician at the former clinic building at the intersection of Lumber Jack Guy Road and Airport Road. The former clinic building sometimes presented challenges, he said, having only four exam rooms.

He also was the only doctor at the House of Wellness in Baraboo, traveling there two days a week until the medical program could be established. He also was part of the "fitness initiative," working with the diabetes part of the support system.

Then, Dr. Boardman left the Ho-Chunk Nation for three years, only to return in July 2002. He's been with the Nation ever since.

Dr. Boardman is leaving the Ho-Chunk Nation to work with Memorial Hospital in Black River Falls as the "Hospitalist." As Hospitalist, Boardman will be the physician to patients who have been admitted to the hospital and don't have a doctor on staff, or their doctor is unavailable during part or all of their stay in the hospital.

Although Boardman has enjoyed his work with the Nation, he believes it's time he tried something else.

"I'm anxious to try a different branch," Boardman said. "It's not a reflection on anyone at the Ho-Chunk Clinic. It's just that there are so many programs that I'd like to be doing.

Boardman has always worked at the Krohn Člinic, seeing patients and even delivering babies, he said.

"This has all been going on at the same time," he said. "I've had some very long

All in all, Boardman said that he's grateful for the opportunity to work at the Ho-Chunk Clinic.

"It is a wonderful place to work. The clinic provides excellent health care," he said.

"I'm very comfortable with the people.

"Î've had a very good time," he said. "I'm happy and I'm honored.'

Dr. Ben Boardman's pillar is engraved with the Ho-Chunk seal and indicates the Ho-Chunk Nation's gratitude for 12 years of

Getting to the Root of Good Nutrition

Rutabaga

Submitted by Tara Ringler Nutritionist

An excellent addition to winter meals is root vegetables. This is because they can be added to hearty, hot dishes and are often inexpensive in the winter months compared to some other vegetables.

Examples of Root Vegetables:

Potatoes, Sweet potatoes, Yams, Carrots, Beets, Onions, Radishes, Rutabagas, Parsnips, & Turnips

The last 3 listed are shown since they are unfamiliar to many people. Rutabagas and turnips can look similar but rutabagas are usually larger. They look similar because rutabagas are part turnip and cabbage.

All the vegetables listed can be found in most all grocery stores. Look for them fresh, frozen or canned but choose lower sodium and/or sugar varieties when selecting canned ones.

Bonus for Diabetics and

Parsnips

those wanting to Lose Weight:

Rutabagas and turnips have a similar taste & texture as potatoes but they do not raise blood sugar as greatly so they are a great alternative to help with blood sugar control. These vegetables also have fewer calories compared to potatoes so they also help with weight control.

Carrots, beets, onions, & radishes also are great choices for diabetics since they only raise blood sugar slightly, unless they are eaten in excess. 1 serving is a ½ cup and the recommendation for vegetables is at least 2 ½ cups each day.

While parsnips are also similar in taste & texture as potatoes, they raise blood sugar slightly greater than potatoes. Sweet potatoes and yams do too. However, all vegetables are a better choice versus foods such as sweets, chips, and crackers when it comes to managing your blood sugar, weight, and health better. Eating a variety of all foods, in moderation, is

How to Eat Root Vegetables Try adding them to soups or stews or have them with or as a side dish. Rutabagas, turnips, & parsnips can be prepared just like a potato such as baked, mashed, or pan-fried with a little olive or canola oil & seasonings. Local poets have works published

Ken Luchterhand Staff Writer

One day, Rayn was reading a magazine when something caught her eye. She saw an advertisement announcing a poetry contest.

"Entering a contest was one of three things I needed to do to get an 'A' in class," Rayn said.

So, she entered the contest along with her mother, Trinity Kail.

Both mother and daughter were notified that their poems won a place in their contest and would be appearing in a book of poems, "In My Lifetime" by Eber and Wein Publishing of Shrewsbury, PA.

Rayn, 14, said that she has been writing poetry since she was 11. She also is writing a book about a wolf that has a quest to have humans and wolves understand each other.

Trinity said that she writes poems for friends and recently wrote a poem for a friend whose husband committed suicide.

She plans to continue writing and has plans to write children's books.

Rayn is the daughter of the late Jesse White and the granddaughter of Glen White.

Feeling only sadness and

With each passing day I assume.

I am left forever alone in this desolate room.

I lean against these stone walls:

And hear the song of the distant wolf calls;

And then the rain falls, Pounding against these stone walls.

Then one day a light appeared,

I felt no sadness nor fear, As it expands it becomes clear.

I became free the day the light appeared.

The day the light came; I

I feel no sadness nor regret, They no longer treat me as a pet,

As for that room; I'm glad I left.

Eagle Watch Days in Sauk Prairie

Sherman Funmaker Staff Writer

During the winter, hundreds of eagle's roost, soar, and fish along the banks of the Wisconsin River at Sauk Prairie. Every year, during the first three weekends in January, Sauk Prairie hosts Bald Eagle Watching Days, giving visitors up close views of these once-endangered national symbols from riverside vantage points.

Of 8,600 known birds of the world, the bald eagle has gained more than its share of attention. Exclusive to North America, it has been a premier predator of the heavens for thousands of years and justifiably so. An adult of this species has only one noteworthy enemy — man. Until recent decades, careless disregard for this beautiful bird nearly caused its extinction.

Bald eagles literally dominated the skies of North America before the 1800s. Shortly into the 19th century, however, habitat destruction and the shooting of eagles for sport started their gradual decline. With the birds careening dangerously toward extinction, the government initiated passage of the Migratory Bird Treaty of 1916 and, a number of years later, the Bald Eagle Protection Act of 1940. Violators face fines of up to $20,000 and one to five years imprisonment. Enforcement, though, was weak. By 1950, eagles no longer existed in many of their previous habitats.

With only 82 known pairs left nesting within its borders, the state of Wisconsin finally took action. In 1972 the bald eagle was placed on the Badger State's endangered species list. That same banner year, the federal government outlawed DDT and other pesticides that had been contaminating the eagle's food chain. These actions marked the turning point for the eagle's restoration. Unfortunately, recovery has been slow.

Most residents of Wisconsin have supported their state's contribution to aiding the plight of bald eagles; however, two communities deserve special thanks, the folks of Sauk City and Prairie du Sac have dedicated themselves to the long-term welfare of eagles and other migratory birds that winter there each year.

The cold winter months of December through February are good times to find and watch bald eagles in Wisconsin. Since lakes and rivers freeze over in winter, dams and power plants provide areas of open water in which the eagles can fish.

The greatest number of eagles can usually be seen at open-water areas in the mornings as they fly back and forth, searching for their first meal of the day. Wintering eagles also feed on carrion and later in the day can frequently be seen searching for and feeding on dead deer and other animals in the countryside. Once a carcass is located, several eagles often congregate to feed. Late in the afternoon, the eagles head to their favorite night roosting areas - places with large trees that provide protection from cold winds and severe weather.

University of Wisconsin volunteer law school students helping with this free service.

Sherman Funmaker Staff Writer

This January, Wisconsin Judicare staff, Easter Seals of Wisconsin sponsors and the University of Wisconsin Law School volunteers made stops by several Ho-Chunk facilities to help tribal members and employees with drafting a will, power of attorney and basic estate planning services for free.

The service stopped by Wisconsin Dells, Black River Falls, Nekoosa and Madison.

Dates in some other communities in March will be announced soon.

According to David Armstrong, the Director of Indian Law Office of Wisconsin Judicare, the reason why tribal members should use this service is because many of them own trust land.

"If you own trust land, whether here in Wisconsin or in Nebraska, those lands are governed by special federal laws for probate, and those federal laws make it so as to where they encourage you to have a will because there are provisions that a lot of people may not agree with. Things like if you have a very small interest and they can only go to your oldest child. So we want to make sure that need is addressed in the community because doing wills for tribal members that have trust land reduces land fractionation." He said.

David also added that the Ho-Chunk Nation Elder Housing program and HOP requires you to have a will.

This was the second year that they have come to Ho-Chunk country for this service.

If anyone has questions or concerns you can contact the Wisconsin Judicare offices for legal help and information about this free service to elders and low-income individual.

Ho-Chunk employees are taught how to drive defensively

Ken Luchterhand Staff Writer

If there's a way people can avoid injury and personal property damage, Donald Greengrass may have the answer for you.

He's been offering the class, "Defense Driving Course" to employees of the Ho-Chunk Since they are using fleet vehicles for transportation while doing their jobs, it's important that they do it safely," Greengrass said. "Plus, they need those skills when they come to work and go home. We're teaching them good driving skills."

Greengrass uses materials from the National Safety Council to teach his class. He offered the class twice on Friday, Jan. 25 and hopes to offer it again in February. Participants are awarded a certificate, which some insurance agencies will accept for a discount on their car insurance.

"Driving safely saves lives, time and money," Greengrass

What drivers need to do, when on the road, is to prevent accidents by thinking ahead. A preventable collision is one in which the driver fails to everything reasonable to avoid it.

Donald Greengrass explains to the group of Ho-Chunk employees how they can avoid vehicle accidents by staying alert and plan for correct action before an emergency maneuver needs to be taken.

accidents, causing people to drive faster and less cautious to get somewhere they need to be.

Another factor is that "baby boomers," who are now in their 50s and 60s, are on the roadways in large numbers, therefore the driving population is getting older.

There is no law that says you can't drive into your 90s or 100s," Greengrass said.

Greengrass offered the acronym "R U A Safe Driver?" with the first letters representing actions need by a safe driver.

"R" stands for "Recognize the hazard," meaning drivers have to scan ahead, around and behind the vehicle. They need to check mirrors every three to five seconds and use their "what if" strategy to keep themselves alert to hazards.

"U" stands for "Understand the defense," meaning drivers need to know what to do to avoid a hazard. They need to know the basic defenses, such as slow down and maintain a safe following distance.

"A" stands for "Act correctly" in time, meaning to stay focused and choose the safest maneuver to avoid a crash. Others may act in time, but incorrectly, such as swerving into oncoming traffic instead of onto the shoulder. Drivers may panic because they are young and inexperienced.

33rd Annual Martin Luther King celebration held at the State Capital

Lady Dancers perform the Swan Dance

Sherman Funmaker Staff Writer

Hundreds of people gathered Monday to celebrate Martin Luther King Jr. Day at the annual state Capitol tribute held in Madison Wisconsin.

Gov. Scott Walker and Madison Mayor Paul Soglin were among those who attended the state's 33rd annual ceremony honoring King, which included speeches, singing and dance performances.

Martin Luther King Day is a federal holiday held on the third Monday of January. It celebrates the life and achievements of Martin Luther King Jr., an influential American civil rights leader. He is most well-known for his campaigns to end racial segregation on public transport and for racial equality in the United States.

It is a relatively new federal holiday and there are few long standing traditions. It is seen as a day to promote equal rights for all Americans, regardless of their background. Some educational establishments mark the day by teaching their pupils or students about the work of Martin Luther King and the struggle against racial segregation and racism. In recent years, federal legislation has encouraged Americans to give some of their time on this day as volunteers in citizen action groups.

Martin Luther King was an important civil rights activist. He was a leader in the movement to end racial segregation in the United States. His most famous address was the "I Have A Dream" speech. He was an advocate of non-violent protest and became the youngest man to be awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. He was assassinated in 1968.

In 1968, shortly after Martin Luther King died, a campaign was started for his birthday to become a holiday to honor him. After the first bill was introduced, trade unions lead the campaign for the federal holiday. It was endorsed in 1976. Following support from the musician Stevie Wonder with his single "Happy Birthday" and a petition with six million signatures, the bill became law in 1983. Martin Luther King Day was first observed in 1986, although it was not observed in all states until the year 2000.

Among the performers were the Wisconsin Dells Singers and along with them 16 dancers that showcased their talents.

"Save our water, no unsafe mines" rally Saturday

Sherman Funmaker Staff Writer

Several hundred people gathered on the steps on the State Capitol at noon this past January 26th to voice their concern about the impacts of a proposed mine in the Penokee Hills and outrage over the introduction of Assembly/ Senate Bill 1, the iron strip mining bill.

Protesters demanded that the legislators reject the recently-introduced mining bill, Senate Bill 1, as well as Sen. Tim Cullen's bill and any other legislation that weakens environmental regulations and citizen participation in iron mine permitting. The protest also called on legislators to respect Native American treaty rights and comply with the requests of the Bad River Band of Ojibwe not to allow a mining project that could jeopardize the natural resources they rely on for their culture and way of life.

The Bad River Ojibwe Tribe opposes the Penokee Mine and has been proactive in fighting to defend the land and water. The EPA recently approved a new set of tribal water quality standards that prohibit any projects upstream from polluting waters flowing into their reservation. They are seeking Class 1 Air Quality designation, which would further federally protect their region from mining. Finally, the Tribe released a set of ten principles for any changes to mining laws that would protect the environment and cultural resources for future generations:

- 1. Exclude any project proposal that has the potential to cause acid mine drainage.
- 2. The burden of preparing and submitting a complete application should be entirely on the permit applicant.
- 3. Provide adequate time for the DNR, the public, federal agencies, and affected Indian tribes to fully review and participate in the process.
- 4. Maintain existing wetland protection standards and the federal/state partnership in the environmental review process.
- 5. Correct, don't weaken, the DNR's federal Clean Water Act implementation.
- 6. Allow contested case hearings with full participation by citizens, including Indian tribes.
- 8. Allow citizen suits to make sure permit provisions and legal restrictions on new mines will be enforced.

A crowd of about 300 gather at the steps of the Capitol.

9. Require consultation with Indian tribes by the DNR as part of the permitting process.

Following the rally, there was a march to Wisconsin Manufacturers and Commerce to highlight the role they play in pushing the agenda of Gogebic Taconite and mining equipment manufacturers Caterpillar and Joy Global.

In testimony during Wednesday's hearing on the mining bill, WMC spokesperson Scott Manley falsely claimed that the bill would not allow waste rock to impact water quality, when in fact the bill allows mining companies greater latitude to fill wetlands and navigable waters, allows consideration of sites for waste rock with a reasonable probability of polluting surface water, and doubles the size of the area in which mine waste can legally pollute groundwater.

Mining proponents tout an optimistic number of potential mining jobs while failing to mention of the potential economic costs to farmers, tourism, the Bad River Band, and others that rely on clean water from the proposed mine site.

The rally and march was organized by Madison Action for Mining Alternatives and has been endorsed by 21 organizations from around Wisconsin, including the Wisconsin Network for Peace and Justice.

Highground honors Native American veterans with First Warrior exhibit

Ken Luchterhand Staff Writer

For the first time, a display for Native American veterans is on display at The Highground Veterans Memorial Park near Neillsville, WI.

The name of the display is "First Warrior" and is housed in The Highground's Learning Center. An Opening Ceremony was held Jan. 16. The display will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily until the end of February. The Learning Center is still accepting memorabilia from Native American veterans until the conclusion of the display.

However, with further research, she was able to find a new venture by Jeffrey A. Mitchell from Oregon. However, since she was still in the hospital at that planned time of event, it was postponed.

Hunger strikes and spiritual fasts are potentially extremely dangerous to human beings.

Given the longevity of Chief Spence's hunger strike, which she began on December 11, 2012, her health has been reportedly weak in recent days according to sources who have been on Victoria Island, near Parliament Hill, in Ottawa, Canada's national capital city.

Foreign Landowner Notification

Julie Dokkestul, Jackson County Executive Director of the Farm Service Agency informs foreign investors who buy, sell or hold a direct or indirect interest in agricultural lands in the United States that they are required under the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act to report their holdings and transactions to the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

The Agricultural Foreign Investment Act became effective on February 2, 1979 and requires any foreign person who acquires or transfers any interest other than a security interest in agricultural land to report the transaction to FSA within 90 days of the sale or purchase.

The Secretary of Agriculture designated the Farm Service Agency to collect the reports which are to be submitted on form FSA-153, Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act Report. The completed form must be filed at the FSA county office where the land is located.

"Failure to submit an accurate or timely FSA-153 could result in civil penalties of up to 25 percent of the fair market value of the property," said Dokkestul County government offices, bankers, realtors, attorneys, and others involved in real estate transactions are encouraged to notify foreign investors of these reporting requirements. It is the foreign landowner's responsibility to report the land transaction.

RE: Secretarial Election Certification

On December 12, 2012 the Office of the President received the official certification and approval from the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) of the Secretarial Election amendments that were voted on as part of the August 14, 2012 Secretarial Election. The Election Board has already called for the General Election pursuant to Article VIII of the Ho-Chunk Nation Constitution and the Ho-Chunk Election Ordinance, 2HCC§6. Due to the fact that the Nation has now received the official certification of the 2012 Amendments from the BIA the Election Board will be using those amendments, specifically the amendment striking of the four (4) years baccalaureate degree requirement to run for Legislature under the Ho-Chunk Nation Constitution at Article V,

As has been previously published, an individual tribal member had appealed the election results to the BIA and that appeal was denied. Said tribal member has now appealed the BIA's decision to the Interior Board of Indian Appeals (IBIA) within the Department of the Interior. Due to this appeal it should be noted that there is a chance that the IBIA could issue a stay of the BIA's certification of the amendments. If this were to happen, the previous version of the Constitution would have to be used by the Election Board to certify candidates and this would mean that a four (4) year baccalaureate degree would be required. However, no such stay has been issued and the Nation, including the Election Board can proceed with business under the 2012 certified amendments.

NOTICE DISTRICT 5 ELDER ROOF UPDATE

The elder roof repair allocation for District 5 still has funds available for District 5 Elders, 60 years of age and older who are in need of roof repair. Projects will not be allowed to begin until we have a signed / processed contract in place.

DON'T FORGET TO CHANGE YOUR FILTERS

Air filters come in a variety of construction styles and materials. Choosing the best filter for your furnace requires an understanding of the purposes of the types of filter(s). Learning a few basic facts can help you pick the right filter for your furnace and lifestyle.

TYPES FILTERS

There are fiberglass filters which should be changed every 1-2 months. These are the least expensive and provide the least amount of protection against smaller particles. There are also pleated filters which are made of pleated felt which screen out fine particles such as allergens, dust, and pet dander. They also provide better protection so mechanical parts do not wear out.

FILTER CHANGING SCHEDULE

At a minimum check the filter monthly during the heating and cooling season. Regular filter maintenance keeps your air clean and your furnace working smoothly. Dirty, clogged filters make blowers and other mechanisms work harder ultimately shortening their life.

REMEMBER

Cleaner air means less frequent cleaning or painting of surfaces in the home, and better lung health.

NAIHC LEGAL SYMPOSIUM HEATHER CLOUD, DISTRICT 3 LAS VEGAS, NV DECEMBER 10-14, 2012

DECEMBER 10, 2012

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE MEETING

If Native American tribes can change the IHBG formula through legislation, along with subsequent rulemaking on the statutory amendments, could this trigger the need for suspension of funding pending the recipient demonstrating adequate capacity to continue to receive a grant? Tribes are not spending their money in a timely manner and these tribes have piles of money granted to them which are still not spent. Some would rather have this issue addressed at the National Committee rather than the Federal Government dictating to tribes how the situations will be handled. A member of the audience stated, "We created our own mess and now internal documents have made a public display. The Seattle Times have aired out the laundry. Do we want anybody making those decisions for us?" There is a conference call next week and comments must be submitted by January 11, 2013.

Many ask the Navajo Nation what their plans are to resolve the issues of unspent funding. The Navajo Nation voiced their concern about the language being aimed and only directed at them. Navajo representative comments, "Does this promote a warm place for the people to stay? We are representing a lot of people and this does not promote unity or harmony. This calls for a division of tribes." The Navajo Representatives explained that they support others so they were disturbed by the comments and discussion held. They continued to explain that their belief in holding people accountable for their actions. Action is being taken and by supporting administration, they are rebuilding their capacity to fix issues they inherited from the past.

DECEMBER 11, 2012 IHBG FORMULA OVERVIEW

The following topics were discussed in length by housing experts. This was an all day breakout session.

REMOVING 30% RULE

Whichever version gets supported of any amendments would not need a statutory definition of what adjusted income is; rather, let the tribes self-determine what adjustments are necessary to service their tribe. Let the THDE or the Indian tribe's policies or regulations spell this out for their people.

TAX EXEMPTION

Remove the requirements for the PILOT agreement for tax exemption. Set a specified time frame in which BIA must make a determination for the waiver for agreement and if no response, then it be automatically approved.

DEFINITION OF FAMILIES

Already includes individuals in the definition, AIAN households, persons, ARCANA, federal definition includes individuals. Just want to ensure this is not changing the formula.

DECEMBER 12, 2012 NAHASDA NEGOTIATING RULEMAKING BASICS – PART I IHBG FORMULA PRIMERS

The negotiation and rulemaking process allows direct input and drafting of the proposed regulations by stakeholders (Tribes and TDHE).

Negotiation and rulemaking committee is advising to the Secretary of the Agency (HUD)

Secretary of HUD holds the final rulemaking power.

Final regulations are also reviewed by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB)

Sec 106 Regulations for Negotiations and Rulemaking Committee (25 USC § 4116)

- 1) 90 days or the date of enactment of any reauthorization.
- 2) Must establish a rulemaking committee in 180 days.
- 3) Promulgate final regulations within 2 years.

All NAHASDA rules are to be issued according to the Negotiations and Rulemaking Act.

HUD shall adopt the procedures for negotiated rulemaking to the unique government to government (G2G) relationship between the Indian Tribes and the U.S. shall ensure that the membership of the committee only includes representatives of the Federal government and of geographically diverse, small, medium and large tribes.

1000.9 How is negotiated rulemaking conducted when promulgating NAHASDA regulations?

Negotiated rulemaking procedures and requirements set out in section 106(b) of the NAHASDA shall be conducted as follows (a) committee members, (b) initiation of rulemaking, (c) workgroups, and (d) further review.

On July 3, 2012 there was an initiation of notice to started negotiated rulemaking for purposes of "developing regulatory changes" to the IHBG funding formula.

Sept 18, 2012 posted notice for nominations and due Nov 19, 2012 "Will participate in good faith in development of the rule."

- 1) Publication: federal register by HUD of proposed committee members.
- 2) Finalize committee membership.
- 3) Schedule first meeting to organize committee and adopt charter and protocols – rules for how the committee will operate and make decisions.
- 4) HUD typically pays for travel and lodging expenses of committee members during meetings which are scheduled for different regions around the country.
- 5) Meetings are public and open to participation by non-committee members.

There are 31 nominations and the first meeting will be in the early spring in which the Assistant Secretary of Indian Housing will sit on the Committee.

IHBG FORMULA OVERVIEW

– PART II

IHBG will be awarded by formula rather than by competition. The formula is based on need and will be developed by the negotiated rulemaking committee.

Need:

- There is a number of low income housing units developed in 1937 ACT fund still owned and operated by the Tribe or TDHE (Current assisted stock – CAS)
- "The extent of poverty and economic distress and the number of Indian families within Indian areas of the Tribe"
- "Other objectively measurable conditions as the Secretary and the Indian Tribes may specify."

2 main categories for allocating funds:

ain categories for allocating funds:
 1937 Act units – formula current assisted stock

(CAS)

- Extent of poverty and economic distress - 'Need'

25 CFR 4152@

Relative admin capacity – led to a minimum funding amount.

There are 5 state recognized tribes whom are part of the formula.

Operation and modernization funding same as 1965, will receive no less than that amount given in 1996.

LIST OF ISSUES AND SPECIAL CONCERNS

- Negotiated rulemaking committee consensus. Should it be one united voice or by super majority.
- 2. Rulemaking versus statutory amendments-Should the changes for the IHBG formula be done legislatively or via the negotiating and rulemaking Committee? The Committee was established to do this; however, amendments have been passed that change the formula significantly which required the regulations to be reconciled. Amendments were submitted by individuals, tribes, housing entities and/or HUD.
- 3. Need component data- Should the census data be used in creating the formula or allow tribes to submit their own needs numbers? Two things to consider: (a) census data could be incorrect or a misrepresentation and (b) if tribes were to submit their own data, this would not prohibit any nation from changing their own laws to increase their need numbers and would change the amount of money they receive.
- 4. Current Assisted Stock is part of creating the formula. How are they defined and should they receive a funding allocation? If so, what effect might this have on the flexibility under the current statute? What about tax credits? What about the tribes that already uses the money and/ or other sources of funding for building new units?
- 5. Maximum funding amount: should there be a cap placed on how much of the funding one nation receives, as there is a minimum amount received for smaller tribes or tribes that would receive very little of the funds?

DECEMBER 13, 2012 BIA ROADS MUST PARTNER WITH HOUSING

This was an all day presentation given by the Federal Government representatives and Legal representatives from Indian Country.

There was a national Federal negotiation and rulemaking committee for the roads funding. After 5 years of debate, no consensus was reached and this is what forced the hand of the Federal government to create a formula which will be followed by and impacts all tribal entities. The roads program formula will now be based off the NAHASDA rulemaking formula. Whatever needs are reflected from this formula, is the number that will be inserted to the roads program. Historically, the needs data has been generated from census data. As stated earlier, the manner in which needs is to be determined is still in debate. Also, in the past, if the numbers provided were incorrect, it was not challenged many times because the costs to rectify this information could cost about four times the amount of dollars it was worth. This was a loss to many housing entities and thus may go unchallenged. Granted, if the number for the needs is slightly incorrect for housing purposes, this will have a huge impact on the funding received by the roads program as it is a larger factor in this formula.

There is a huge push and strongly suggested that all tribal departments involved in these processes and funding sources stop overlapping services and make the best use of the funds. It is encouraged by the Federal government employees that tribal departments and/or housing entities work collaboratively and close-knit to have comprehensive short term and long term plans in regards to housing and roads programs. There should be a liaison for each department going to regular meetings to track the progress and ensure the plans are making headway.

Also, it would benefit any tribe to do partnerships with The State Department of Transportation. They ask that tribes work on breaking down any barriers and it was advised that Tribes approach local and state municipalities to demonstrate the plan for the money received which also includes The Nation's current inventory. The money that tribes provide or contribute could allow for current projects to be considered as a higher priority.

DECEMBER 14, 2012

The Legislative Committee voted on amendments and resolutions presented. Each Tribe that paid their membership dues was given a ballot. Some Nations allowed their proxies to cast their votes.
